Forecast For Strathclyde
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Sunday 13 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Argyll cloudy with some patchy rain. Otherwise warm, dry, sunny.

Today:
A warm day from the Central Belt southwards with sunny spells increasing. Mainly cloudy across Argyll with some patchy rain, mainly at first this morning and again towards early evening. Maximum temperature 23 deg C (73 deg F).

Tonight:
Rather cloudy evening with occasional rain. This passes to the east towards dawn, as clear spells and a few isolated light showers follow from the west. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Monday:
A much fresher day with temperatures significantly down from Sunday. Many staying dry, but a few light showers brought on fresh westerly winds, chiefly across Argyll. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Tuesday mainly dry and bright. Rain spreading to west late in day and overnight, before clearing eastwards Wednesday. Thereafter showers and brighter spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.